

Name _____

Mohawk Valley Community College

CI 132 Lab 25

1. What command will display the environment variables set for your login session
2. Identify and explain three environment variables set in your login session. Include their current values.
3. What command can be used to display the value of a single environment variable? Provide an example.
4. Which shell configuration files are processed for login sessions? List them in order of execution.
5. List an advantage provided to the end-user by this execution order

6. Explain the purpose of the PATH environment variable.
7. Describe the environment variables associated with setting your prompt